About the fund

Launched in August 1998, the Fisher Funds New Zealand Growth Fund is our flagship fund. It aims to produce long-term growth by investing in a concentrated selection of high-quality New Zealand companies hand-picked by our Investment Team. Typically, the fund will be invested in 15 to 20 companies at any one time. The focus is on companies with wide economic moats, long runways for growth and that are run by exceptional people.

Why choose this fund?

If you are looking for higher potential growth in your investment over the long term and are comfortable with the volatility that comes with a higher risk fund, and also like the idea of investing in well-known, market-leading New Zealand companies, this fund could be a good choice for you.

Fund highlights for July 2025

The New Zealand Growth Fund returned +0.7% in July, compared to its benchmark of +1.8%.

Mainfreight (-10%) provided a 17-week trading update at its Annual Shareholders Meeting. This showed an unexpectedly large fall in profit before tax of -24% versus the corresponding week of the prior year, with a decline in all three products: Transport, Warehousing, and Air & Ocean freight forwarding. The company didn't provide its usual regional breakdown of performance. Mainfreight referenced the shorter trading weeks in April and May and tariff uncertainty during the period, and alluded to trading improving into June and July, although did not provide any figures to quantify this. The company pointed to new business wins of $65 million in the period, although this has been offset by downtrading of existing customers to the tune of $38 million. Market conditions have been competitive, with revenue growth of around +1.5%, a sharp deceleration from the +14% in the six months to March 2025, across all three products. This prolongs the period where the company's longer term organic growth strategy has been overshadowed by tough market conditions.

Fisher & Paykel Healthcare (FPH, +2%) hosted an investor day in Melbourne featuring discussions with Australian clinicians across hospital's neonatal, emergency, anaesthesia, and ward settings where its respiratory support products are used. This demonstrated FPH's progress in changing clinical practice, as well as providing the opportunity to speak to members of the wider management team. Australia has been an early-adopter market for the company and so it provided proof-of-concept that its therapies can continue to see greater penetration throughout the hospital setting. The day was well attended and while there was little by way of new product announcements or business forecasts, it was a good reminder of FPH's strong business fundamentals. The company continues to demonstrate quality leadership, a genuine long-term sustainable horizon and a substantial runway for further earnings growth.

Summerset (+2%) delivered a strong June quarter trading update, with total unit sales up +21% on the same period last year, driven by a record for new sales. Summerset is making solid progress selling down its St Johns project in Auckland with both settled sales and contracting rates continuing to progress well.

Up close & personal

Matt Peek describes the appealing aspects of Mainfreight.

What does it do?

Mainfreight is a global supply chain logistics company. Its services primarily span domestic transport, managed warehousing, and international air and sea freight. Its operations span New Zealand, Australia, the Americas, Europe, and Asia.

Why do we own it?

Mainfreight is a very well-run company with a special company culture that has delivered strong performance over time. It continues to open new trade lanes as it spreads its logistics footprint ever wider. Growth should come organically as it takes market share and works further towards its 100-year vision of becoming a leading global logistics provider.
