About the fund

The Fisher Funds Property & Infrastructure Fund aims to achieve growth over the long term by investing in New Zealand and international property and infrastructure assets. Our Investment Team handpick businesses that own growth infrastructure and property assets – businesses that have naturally wide economic moats and benefit from structural growth. This includes businesses that own assets such as cellular towers, airports, railroads, industrial buildings and power companies.

Why choose this fund?

If you value higher potential long-term returns and are comfortable with some volatility, and also like the idea of investing in companies that provide essential products and services, this fund could be a good choice for you.

Fund highlights for July 2025

The Property and Infrastructure Fund rose +0.6% in July, compared to its benchmark of +2.8%.

CMS Energy (+6.5%) reported second-quarter earnings which modestly met market expectations. Investors had been concerned about the impact of lower renewable tax incentives after the passage of President Trumps "One Big Beautiful Bill" in July. Despite a modest earnings impact from this event, it was outweighed by strong operating performance and a new data centre deal. Regulatory risk eased as key return-levels were approved, as well as a mechanism for recovering storm costs from customers. CMS announced a 1GW data centre deal with a hyperscale customer, validating CMS's 9GW data centre pipeline. CMS sees potential capital investment upside from increasing electricity demand, which could further improve the future earnings outlook.

American Tower (-5.7%) reported second quarter earnings, which were in line with expectations, and lifted full-year earnings guidance. The improved outlook is due to strength in American Tower's international towers and Coresite data centre business, together with favourable foreign exchange rates. Despite the improving earnings outlook, the stock sold off on the result, primarily due to softness in new business within American Tower's core US tower business. A key customer was upgrading its tower portfolio slower than expected. The impact was modest (less than 0.1% of revenue) but indicates a slower acceleration in growth than the market had hoped for after a few years of subdued new business activity.

Up close & personal

The Fund invests in companies on the basis of their individual merits. For some companies our investment thesis is also supported by "mega-trends" which support long-term returns from property and infrastructure assets.

Mobile Cell Networks cell towers are increasingly important infrastructure assets in an ever-connected and digitally-enabled world.

They receive income from mobile phone operators who are dependent on them to install network equipment and ensure wide network coverage. By enabling an essential service for modern-day consumers these businesses are defensive as well as having an attractive structural growth profile as mobile data consumption continues to grow. The networks have high barriers to entry which creates a wide moat, reducing the threat of new competitors.
